

February – Love, friendship and marriage

In February, Valentine's Day is celebrated by many to commemorate love and romance. It will be useful to bring some normalcy to the lives of Christians in the Middle East by reminding them of the blessings of having loved ones in their lives. It's possible to point to the relationship between Christ and the Church and connecting it with the relationship between husband and wife.

People could be talking about how having a partner (husband, wife, fiancé, best friend etc.) helps them go through daily struggles.

March – Mothers, parents and grandparents

In the Middle East people celebrate Mother's Day on 21 March and it's a month where most people think about their mothers and grandmothers and visit them and buy them gifts. There are many examples in the Bible that talk about parents and about mothers in particular that could be inspiring and encouraging to believers in the Middle East. The story about trusting God's will by Abraham and Sara and also the Virgin Mary, the mother of Christ submitting to God's will which was part of God's plan for the salvation of humanity.

April – Easter and the resurrection

Easter represents revival and freedom. The story of the triumph over death and receiving eternal life. What stronger message could be more encouraging for Christians than this? People can talk about what Easter and the resurrection mean to them and how they're encouraged.

May – Workers, jobs, unemployment and education

Many Christians are facing difficulties securing jobs or gaining an education that might lead to a career. There are still many instabilities and the economic situation in many countries in the Middle East is miserable. But God's mercy is limitless and it's important to show the wisdom in God's plan. That we can still serve God and other people in many ways.

June – Family and children

Families are very important and they're a source of strength to Middle Easterners. Having a family is a blessing and people can identify with the joy and also the struggles of taking care of a family.
